

Ethics Café

Campus conversations about professional and societal ethics

SPRING 2013 EVENTS

HOW ARE UNMANNED WEAPONS CHANGING THE ETHICS OF WAGING WAR?

Monday, February 4

Maj. Gen. Robert Latiff (USAF, Ret.) and Charles Pence explore the ways in which the rapidly evolving technologies of unmanned and robotic weapons are changing our moral obligations in war.

HOW TO HAVE DIFFICULT CONVERSATIONS: STRATEGIES AND TIPS

Monday, March 4

Presenters Tammy Freeman and Amanda McKendree will help you gain insights into your conflict style and learn strategies to effectively manage difficult situations encountered when working with peers or interacting with a mentor/advisor.

CLIMATE CHANGE AND ASSISTED MIGRATION: WHAT OBLIGATIONS DO HUMANS HAVE TO SPECIES?

Thursday, April 4

What obligations do humans have to species since we have contributed to climate change? Should we interfere with nature by moving species? What do we do if relocated species become invasive in the new habitat? Conservation ecologist Maria Hällfors of the Finnish Museum of Natural History and a collaborator with ND's Environmental Change Initiative will host a discussion on the ethical issues raised by assisted migration, which is the human-managed translocation of species threatened by climate change to more suitable habitats.

All events held from 3:00 p.m. to 4:00 pm at the Geddes Coffeehouse

Events sponsored by the Graduate School and John J. Reilly Center
